COPING WITH HARDSHIP

When we experience hardship, it can be scary. While some reactions are to be expected, it is important to know what reactions and coping skills are problematic and when to seek help.

EXPECTED REACTIONS

Thoughts
- Difficulties with attention and decision-making
- Sharper perception
- Confusion and disorientation
- Intrusive or recurring thoughts/images about the event
- Blame (self or others)
- Enhanced appreciation for family, friends, and loved ones

Feelings
- Feeling mentally or physically drained
- Feeling sad and having crying spells
- Fear, worry, or anxiety about the future
- Shock, or feeling emotionally numb
- Irritability and anger
- Loss of interest in things
- Fatigue, muscle tension, and headaches

Behaviors
- Increased alertness and becoming easily startled
- Difficulty eating and sleeping
- Arguing with friends and family members
- Feeling mobilized to take action

Note that distressing reactions should go away over time. If they do not decrease within a couple of weeks, this may be cause for concern.

Seek help immediately if you experience...
- Increases in risky behavior (e.g. increased substance use)
- Thoughts of hurting or killing self or others
- Helplessness or hopelessness

COPING SKILLS

Helpful
- Reaching out to family and friends
- Engaging in positive distracting activities (hobbies, sports, etc.)
- Trying to maintain a normal schedule
- Getting enough rest
- Exercising and eating well
- Using breathing and relaxation skills
- Engaging in community recovery efforts

Unhelpful
- Avoiding thoughts, feelings, and reminders of the traumatic event
- Using alcohol or drugs to cope
- Withdrawing from family and friends
- Withdrawing from pleasant activities
- Overeating or undereating
- Overworking
- Self-harm
